I got lucky and bought a 2400 with decent cosmetics, but which had a blown left channel, for the amazing price of $25.00. The 7 amp fuse would blow, but the other fuses were OK. I found and replaced 7 shorted transistors (Q703,423,421,422,424,706 and 702). This is an awesome amp, probably the best-sounding power amp I have ever owned.

The first external amp I ever heard was an NAD 2400. The guy had it powering his Klipsch mains AND a DIY passive sub. I remember it kicked mighty hard. I also remember that one of the selling points of the NAD was its headroom. I don't know if that is a good price or not.....
